Vision 2020

Start thinking about Vision 2004

By Staff Sgt. Christine Castillo
460th Public Affairs

Complaints are heard all around the base about the lack of services, programs and what Buckley has to offer the members who support it. Enter Vision 2020, a well thought out construction timeline for the base. So, for the next 16 years, Team Buckley members can look at a graphic illustration of what the base will eventually look like.

What about today? What can we do, as individuals, to improve Buckley?

For starters, we can work on our overall attitude. Instead of walking around focusing on the negative aspects, start thinking about what's good in your life. Your work may not be that exciting but maybe your coworkers make it interesting.

On the other hand, maybe it's your coworkers that are the problem, but is your attitude helping or hurting the situation?

Just altering your general attitude can create a positive outlook on life. I'm not saying that everyone should walk around with a smile plastered to his or her face; we're all entitled to a bad day. I just think if you concentrate on the positive things in your life, everything else doesn't seem so bad.

Every time I hear someone say something negative about the base I want to say, "What are you going to do about it?" Take some action in the things you think need improvement. If you have an idea on how to improve something, why not submit it to the Air Force IDEA (Innovative Development through Employee Awareness) Program? If that's not the appropriate forum, just take it up your chain of command.

Now take into consideration, not everything you think is wrong with Buckley is going to change just because you think it should. Don't get frustrated if your suggestion gets turned down. There's no harm in trying again.

The point I'm trying to get across is simple: it's good to look forward to things in the future. But, if you're too busy looking toward things that may come, you might miss something — your life. So enjoy what you have.

New base prefix coming soon

460th Communications Squadron

A new telephone-dialing scheme affecting dialing into Buckley is scheduled to begin March 25.

According to Lt. Col. Stephen Smith, 460th Communications Squadron commander, Buckley Air Force Base only has 5,000 phone numbers available to its customers, and as of now 85 percent of these numbers are already in use.

To keep up with Buckley’s growing population, more phone numbers are needed to avoid having two different Defense Switch Network (DSN) and commercial prefixes on base.

The 460th Communications Squadron has already researched and reserved our new telephone-dialing scheme.

Starting March 25 at 6 p.m., Buckley will transition from 303-677-XXXX to 720-847-XXXX. The DSN dialing will change from 877-XXXX to 847-XXXX. The prefix will now be the same for DSN and commercial calls.

The dialing scheme was specifically selected to keep on-base dialing changes to a minimum. The base will still have the same 5-digit dialing. For example, if dialing 7-0000 today, once Buckley transitions, 7-0000 is still applicable. The change only affects dialing into the base.

According to Mr. Steven Keuper, 460 CS plans, the most important thing to remember is to notify all off-base contacts of the change.

“Schools and daycare providers are some of the most important businesses that should be notified of the change, ensuring that in case of an emergency, you can be notified as soon as possible,” said Mr. Keuper.

For numbers that do not belong to a specific person but are key numbers nonetheless, actions will be taken to ensure the word gets out, said Mr. Keuper.

“The base operator number and public affairs, for example, will have a redirect message stating the number has been changed.

Unfortunately, there isn’t enough money to have a redirect message for every number on base, that’s why it’s the member’s responsibility to notify their own contacts of the change,” he said.

For more information, call the 460th Communications Squadron Plans Office at 303-677-5850.

Sexual Assault Assessment Team to visit Buckley

Courtesy of

A Sexual Assault Assessment Team from Headquarters, Air Force Space Command will visit Buckley Air Force Base on March 18 and 19 to do an end-to-end review of the 460th Air Base Wing’s sexual assault policies and programs.

This visit is part of a larger Air-Force wide assessment to examine plans, policies, programs and procedures at each installation to ensure existing programs addressing sexual assaults are appropriate and effective. Each major command was tasked by Gen. T. Michael Moseley, Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, to visit their installations and assess the current status of sexual assault response programs.

At the February CORONA leadership conference, Air Force leadership decided it was time to take the next logical step in reviewing sexual assault response after focusing on the Air Force Academy and evaluating lessons learned from investigations of sexual assault response process problems identified there.

Military sexual assault has been a topic in the news with the Senate Armed Services Committee recently holding hearings on the issue.

The Air Force considers every sexual assault a criminal act and has substantial programs in place at all levels to prevent sexual assaults and other crimes, to support victims, and to hold offenders accountable. This comprehensive assessment of the effectiveness of the Air Force sexual assault response system is being done to determine if there are additional ways it can be improved.

The assessment team visiting Buckley will look at policies and programs in the areas of education and training, reporting procedures, response programs and program oversight.

The Air Force’s goals for the Air Force-wide assessment include striving to eliminate sexual assault and the climate that fosters it; ensuring an environment where victims have confidence to report; conducting appropriate investigation and prosecution; effectively addressing victim’s health and well-being; and ensuring commanders and higher headquarters oversee program effectiveness.

For more information on sexual assault policies and programs at Buckley, or to get additional information on the team’s visit, please call Capt. Rachel Foster at 303-677-6451.

Open Conference

As part of the visit, the HQ AFSPC Sexual Assault Assessment Team will hold an open personal conference period March 18 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. and March 19 from 8-10 a.m. in the 460th Air Base Wing Chaplain’s Office in Mod. 1. Feel free to stop by at any time during this period. This open time is for anyone who would like to discuss or convey information related to the team’s purpose of assessing the wing’s sexual assault policies and procedures.

2004 Air Force Assistance Fund campaign underway

The Air Force Assistance Fund “Commitment to Caring” campaign began on Monday. Officials are asking airmen to contribute to one or more of four Air Force-related charities through cash, check or payroll deduction.

The Buckley AFAF campaign will run from March 15 through April 25. This year’s goal for Buckley is $21,444.22. Unit points of contact will have information on local contribution procedures and unit goals. Each base that receives 50 percent participation and meets a 100 percent of their goal will receive a $2,500 prize for the base community.

The AFAF charities benefit active-duty, reserve, Guard and retired Air Force people, surviving spouses and families. Charities receive 100 percent of AFAF contributions. This is the 31st year of the drive.

Charities under the AFAF umbrella include: □The Air Force Aid Society, the official charitable organization of the Air Force. It provides airmen and their families with worldwide emergency financial assistance, education assistance and an array of base level community-enhancement programs. Local family support centers have full details on programs and eligibility requirements. Information is also available online at www.afas.org.

□The Air Force Enlisted Foundation at Fort Walton Beach, Fla., providing rent subsidy and other support to indigent widows and widowers of retired enlisted people 55 and older. More information is available at www.afenlistedwidows.org.

□The Air Force Village Indigent Widow's Fund in San Antonio, a life-care community for retired officers, spouses, widows or widowers and family members; includes indigent widows fund for widows and widowers of Air Force officers.

The Air Force Villages website is at www.airforcevillages.com.

□The General and Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay Foundation, providing rent and financial assistance to indigent widows and widowers of officers and enlisted people in their own homes and communities. # Blotter Entries

Clear Zone Violation

Location: Zone 31
Central Security received an alarm originating from zone 31. Three patrols were dispatched. Two military members had walked through zone 31 when departing Bldg. 471, the visitor control center. Security forces obtained a restricted area badge from both individuals. A check of the badges verified their authorization to be there. The members were new to the installation and were not aware of the clear zone procedures. Both members completed a field interview card.

Emergency Response

Location: Bldg. 730
The fire department notified the law enforcement desk that an engine responded to Bldg. 730 for personnel reported being nauseated from a possible carbon monoxide leak. One patrol was dispatched for assistance. Security forces made contact with the fire chief who stated the cause of the personnel becoming nauseated was unknown. No traces of carbon monoxide were detected. The personnel stated they were fine after getting fresh air.

POV vs. GOV

Location: Bldg. 26, Joint Services
A military member notified the law enforcement desk of a minor vehicle accident at Bldg. 26, the joint services building. One patrol was dispatched. The first vehicle was backing out to depart the parking lot and backed into the second vehicle. The first vehicle sustained a broken taillight, two holes in the bumper and scratches around the impact area. The second vehicle sustained a dent on the driver’s side rear wheel well and scratches around the impact area. Both drivers completed minor vehicle accident worksheets.

Clear Zone Violation

Location: Zone 29
The law enforcement desk received an alarm in zone 29 where a male was walking toward the perimeter fence. Four patrols were briefed and dispatched. The male’s authority to enter the restricted area was verified. He stated that he dropped some papers and walked into the clear zone to pick them up. Security forces accomplished an AF Form 3907, briefed the member and released him.

Emergency Response

Location: Bldg. 429, 2nd Space Warning Squadron
The fire department notified the law enforcement desk that personnel responded to Bldg. 429 for a fire alarm. One patrol was dispatched. Security forces made contact with the fire chief who stated that the cause was unknown.

Desertion

A military member notified the law enforcement desk of another member entering her office to turn himself in for being absent without leave. One patrol was dispatched. Security forces arrived on scene and took the member into custody. A background check was conducted on the member which revealed an outstanding felony warrant for desertion. The warrant was confirmed after making contact with the U.S. Army Deserter information line. The law enforcement desk contacted the Fort Carson A.W.O.L. Apprehension team who stated they were unable to respond to retrieve the deserter and requested that he be turned over to civil authorities for temporary holding. The law enforcement desk contacted the Aurora Police Department and one officer was dispatched to take custody of the deserter.

Max-Try

Location: North Turnstile
A military member attempted to gain access to the restricted area through the north turnstile and entered an invalid code three times. All turnstiles were automatically locked down. Two patrols were dispatched. Security forces made contact with the member and his authority to enter the restricted area was verified.

Emergency Response

Location: Bldg. 28, Dormitory
The fire department notified the law enforcement desk that there was a response to Bldg. 28, the dormitory for a smoke alarm activation. One patrol was dispatched. The fire chief stated the cause of the alarm was burned food and terminated the response.

Buckle up!

Vehicle safety helps avoid injuries, citations

By Airman 1st Class Chris Smith
460th Public Affairs

Most people know that while driving or riding in a vehicle, seatbelts can help protect occupants from injuries or even death during an accident.

Regardless of statistics involving seatbelts and auto accidents, every day people are reminded by security forces while at the gate or around base to buckle their seatbelts.

Mark Schmidt, 460th Air Base Wing Safety Office, said seatbelts are there to protect drivers and passengers in case of an accident and there is no reason not to wear one.

“Seatbelts are the only safety device you have in a car, the only thing that will protect you,” said Mr. Schmidt. “A lot of people think airbags totally replace a seatbelt, which is wrong. The airbag just supplements the seatbelt.”

Mr. Schmidt also said people who rely on an airbag in the event of an accident don’t realize the problems it can create. He said airbags might actually do more harm than good if a passenger is not wearing a seatbelt.

In the military, it may be hard for people to know what different vehicle safety laws are from state to state. One possible solution to that problem — everyone should buckle up, according to Mr. Schmidt.

There are some variations to vehicle safety laws from driving off base to driving on base. While off base, only the driver and front seat passengers must wear seatbelts, according to Mr. Schmidt, with the exception of children who should be in child restraint seats.

On base, it’s a different story. When people drive through the gate, every passenger in the car needs to have his or her seatbelt buckled. Mr. Schmidt said the Air Force has a different way of looking at vehicle safety than the civilian sector. When on base, the most stringent laws will be followed in the interest of passenger safety.

“Seatbelts will be utilized on base,” he said. “If there’s a van with 18 seatbelts, all 18 passengers will wear the seatbelt. And there won’t be any more passengers than seatbelts either.”

People must also make sure children are properly buckled in and secured in vehicles, according to Mr. Schmidt.

“First, the obvious reason for securing your kids is because you are concerned about the general safety and health of them. Second, with your kids bouncing around, they can get restless, move around and become a distraction,” said Mr. Schmidt.

Safety is also the reason security forces tell people at the gate to buckle up if they haven’t already done so, according to Staff Sgt. Joe Wengler, 460th Security Forces Squadron.

Staff Sgt. Dianna Alley, 460th Legal Office, buckles her seatbelt after she gets into her car to leave Bldg. 606 Wednesday. People should always wear their seatbelts because the likelihood of being hurt or killed in the event of a car accident is greatly reduced.

obeying a law or regulation, but about keeping safe.”

While most of the time, Sergeant Wengler says he will give a friendly reminder to people entering the base to buckle up, sometimes people must be cited to make sure they remember.

“Giving someone a citation is not necessarily to punish them but more to coerce them in the future to wear the seatbelt,” said Sergeant Wengler.

According to the Colorado Department of Public Safety, in 1999, there were 487 motorists that died in motor vehicle crashes that should have had seat belts available (this would exclude pedestrians, motorcyclists, and bicyclists). Of those killed, 293 (63%) were not wearing their seat belts. Of these, 170 (58% of the 293) were ejected from their vehicles, and died from head injuries, having the vehicle roll over on them, and other injuries that could have been avoided if they had been wearing their seat belts.

Like many people at Buckley, Airman 1st Class Natalie Napier is someone who says she always makes sure to properly secure herself when she’s in a vehicle for safety and to avoid getting into trouble.

“I always wear my seatbelt,” she said. “Because it’s the law, it saves lives, it’s how I was raised and because I really don’t feel like going through the windshield if I were to get in an accident.”

Regardless of whatever reasons people do or don’t wear their seatbelts, everyone should. It’s a must-do to get through the gates at Buckley and only takes one moment out of someone’s day.
